Where School Community Connects

Affiliate & External Links Disclosure

Updated September 17, 2026

School Circle Network may link to websites it does not control. The outbound-link notice identifies the destination before you leave, and the destination’s own privacy policy, terms, cookies, and security practices then apply.

Affiliate links

Some clearly identified links may result in a commission from qualifying activity at no added cost to you. A commercial relationship does not change the destination’s responsibility for its services.

Our Affiliate Program

School Circle Network participates in the Amazon Associates program. When a School or organization includes an Amazon product link — for example, in a supply list — and you click through and make a qualifying purchase, School Circle Network may earn a commission at no added cost to you. Wherever an Amazon-linked item appears, a disclosure notice is shown directly on that page, consistent with FTC guidance on affiliate disclosures. This is our only affiliate relationship; we do not have undisclosed paid placement arrangements with any other outbound destination.

How the Outbound-Link Notice Works

Before you leave School Circle Network for an external website, a notice identifies the destination so you can decide whether to continue. If you are signed in, you can choose not to be asked again for that specific destination — that choice is remembered per website (not applied globally), and you can review or reset it at any time from your own account. This notice appears whether or not the destination is an affiliate link; it exists to tell you when you are leaving School Circle Network at all, not only when a commission is involved.

Authoritative HTML source: https://schoolcircle.net/legal/affiliate-external-links
Downloaded November 15, 2026